DE&S Individual Capability Group (ICG) announce their participation at Modern Infantry 2011

6 April 2011

The DE&S Individual Capability Group (ICG) confirmed today that it will be participating in the A|D|S / Shephard Group Modern Infantry event at Bisley as a major opportunity for engagement with industry and other experts involved with equipping and supporting our future soldiers.

Brigadier Carew Wilks, Head of the Individual Capability Group, said, "I am delighted to support the Modern Infantry event as a key opportunity to update industry on our plans for equipping and supporting the soldier, and to discuss with industry and other experts the opportunities to exploit technology to deliver a more capable and lighter soldier in the future. I am keen to share ideas on soldier architectures and integration both on the soldier and within the small tactical unit."

Gordon Lane, MD Defence at A|D|S, commented, "This event is an excellent opportunity for industry to engage with the UK Ministry of Defence and, through the presence of ICG, to gain a deeper understanding of technology requirements for the future, in particular in relation to improved integration."

Alexander Giles, CEO, Shephard Group, added, "The engagement of the ICG is a great statement of confidence by our home military in this event. We look forward to assisting them in their aims."

Modern Infantry is co-located with the Night Vision & EOS event. It will feature conference streams, workshops, in and outdoor exhibits, and live firing demonstrations.
